INTRODUCTION

This booklet is a labor of love made for players, by players. We decided to gather some of the awesome Scenarios the community has created, and put them in a single place. Whether you're playing solo or with friends, cooperatively or competitively, we've got you covered. Keep reading to learn how to make the most out of your game, or jump straight into a Scenario of your choice.

Play Time

You can estimate your minimal play time using the following formula:

$$\text{Play Time} = \boldsymbol{P}\times\boldsymbol{R}\times\mathbf{5}\ [\text{min}]$$

Where:

P – number of players

R – number of Rounds

For example, if you're playing a 3-player Scenario consisting of 12 Rounds, you can easily calculate that $3 \times 12 \times 5 = 180$. Your expected minimal play time would be around 3 hours. One hour per player for 12 Rounds (roughly 5 min for every turn) is possible with competent players.

To calculate the upper bound of your play time (more realistic if there are people playing for the first time), simply double the result. In this case, that would be 6 hours.

Cooperative Mode

In our experience, this is the best mode to enjoy with friends on the tabletop. It makes for a relaxed game, where you strategize together how to achieve the victory conditions. Every cooperative Scenario in this book brings its own unique mechanics to the game.

If you're new to the game and want to try learning the rules, start with a gentle treasure hunt in Emerald Island. In Close to Enemies, enemy Settlements regularly besiege every player's Town, and you must conquer all of them before time runs out. In the two-player Sentinels, enemy armies spawn on random Obelisks and move each Round, destroying every Field they pass through. In Stand United, players build a shared army that everyone can use in Combat, and each player must defeat the Dragon Utopia. In Wandering Dragons, an army of dragons moves erratically on the map, and you must defeat it. In The Ambushed Accord, players take turns fighting increasingly strong ambushes, pool Resources to reveal the Center Map Tile, and each must defeat its Level VII Neutral Army. In Titans' Stronghold, for up to 6 players, you flag every Level VII Field to unlock a Titans' fortress, then defeat its garrison in an epic final battle over several attacks.

Clash Mode

This mode is truly competitive and unforgiving. In this mode, games tend to get lengthy, especially on the tabletop. Don't start them too late, unless you're prepared to play all night, or you can spare more than one day. Luck can decide a competitive game, so check out the custom rules in Competitive Play at the end of this book. They reduce randomness and keep the game fair.

In the 2- or 4-player Bloody Grail, Obelisks offer you a boon or a bloody sacrifice, and you must bring the Grail to your Faction Town. In the king of the hill Trial by Combat, for 2–4 players, the first flag on the hill starts a countdown of two Rounds, and the player who controls the hill at its end wins. In Astral Run, for 2–6 players, Obelisks open Astral Gates across the map, and you win by flagging all 6 Obelisks or by scoring the most Victory Points. In the two-player Chain Link, a Level V Main Hero gives all your Heroes extra Movement Points, and you must capture the enemy Town before the game ends in a draw. In Force of Will, for 2 or 3 players, you race to flag the Dragon Utopia, where Neutral Units attack your army from all four corners of the Combat Board. The Fractured Kingdoms offers a balanced map for 5 players, where the borders between Starting Tiles fall in the 4th Round, one-way monoliths connect the map, and you must score the most Victory Points. In Arcane Artillery, for 2–6 players free-for-all or in teams, your Obelisks give you Arcane Spikes, which you can spend to disrupt even your opponents' Combats, and the first player to flag the Dragon Utopia wins.

Can't decide on a specific Scenario? The Random Scenario generator gives you plenty of options to build your own Clash on the fly.

Campaign

This is the only mode with zero downtime. The game flows very smoothly. The downside is that you can enjoy it only by yourself, or maybe with your kids.

If you enjoy a well-written story, follow Catherine Ironfist across the 3-Scenario Castle Campaign The Queen's Gambit which blends well with the game lore, or fight through the 3-Scenario Inferno Campaign Dungeons and Devils, which predates the official one (the Inferno expansion was released without its own campaign).

More Scenarios

Check out the Draft Scenarios booklet. It collects new Scenarios that wait for playtests before they graduate into this book. Play them and share your feedback to help them get here.

General Recommendations

The following are not custom rules, but rather recommendations to help you get the most out of your game:

- When deciding which building to construct in your Town, especially in the early game, it is usually best to prioritize Units over the City Hall, Citadel, Mage Guild, or other Faction-specific buildings.
- If you're unsure which Spell, Artifact, or Ability to choose, prioritize those that help you cycle through your Deck. This includes any Cards that allow you to draw Cards or retrieve Cards from your Discard Pile.
- As Movement Points are the most precious resources in the game, try to avoid using your Main Hero's MPs for Actions that your Secondary Hero can handle, such as flipping the Map Tiles, visiting Water Wheels, and so on.
- Economy Cards (especially those granting and) are some of the most powerful Cards in the game.
- More often than not, it's not worth holding onto a Card for too long. It's better to cycle through your Deck quickly rather than keep that special Card for multiple Rounds for the best occasion.

COOPERATIVE SCENARIOS

COOPERATIVE SCENARIO

SENTINELS

Author: silence70011

Source: Archon Studio Discord

There is a world beyond ours, filled with beasts and monsters, barely contained by a formation of four sacred Obelisks. But the power of these stones is waning, and a breach is imminent. When it happens, only you and your ally will stand between the hordes and the total devastation of these lands.

SCENARIO LENGTH

12 Rounds

PLAYER SETUP

Player Count: 2

Starting Resources: 10, 2, 1

Starting Income: 10, 2, 1

Starting Units:

- A "Pack" of the cheapest ★ Units
- A "Few" of the most expensive ★ Units

Town Buildings: ★ Dwelling, Citadel

Map Tile Pool: Each player takes 1 random Near (IV–V) Map Tile and 1 random Far (II–III) Map Tile. These Tiles should not contain any Obelisks.

Additional Bonus: Search (2) the Artifact Deck

MAP SETUP

Take the following Map Tiles and arrange them as shown in the Scenario map layout:

- 2 × Starting (I) Map Tile
- 4 × Far (II–III) Map Tile
- 4 × Near (IV–V) Map Tile with the Obelisk Field

VICTORY CONDITIONS

Defeat all invading armies.

DEFEAT CONDITIONS

An undefeated enemy army remains at the end of Round 12.

One of your Towns is captured, or a Main Hero is defeated in a battle (retreat doesn't count).

TIMED EVENTS

6th Round:

- Remove all Black Cubes from every Windmill, Water Wheel, and Mystical Garden on the map.
- Spawn an enemy army following the rules outlined below.

7th and 8th Rounds:

- Spawn an enemy army following the rules outlined below.

9th Round:

- Repeat the Timed Events of Round 6.

10th Round:

- Spawn an enemy army following the rules outlined below.

ADDITIONAL RULES

- Ignore all yellow borders on Starting Tiles.
- Players can trade resources when one of the active player's Heroes Visits a trading post or stands on a Field adjacent to an allied Hero.
- The Hero who defeats an enemy army gains 2 . The victorious player rolls two Treasure Dice and resolves one of them.
- Additionally, no player can:
  - ▷ Attack other Heroes.
  - ▷ Capture a Mine or Settlement that is already Flagged.

ENEMY SPAWNING AND MOVEMENT

- Enemy armies spawn on a random Obelisk Field (use Hero miniatures from Factions not in play).
- Determine which Obelisk Field by rolling 2 Attack Dice. Apply the results as follows (D1/D2), reroll any 0:
  - ▷ +1/+1 = North
  - ▷ +1/−1 = East
  - ▷ −1/+1 = West
  - ▷ −1/−1 = South
- For a more balanced distribution, in Rounds 7 and 9, only roll the second Attack Die (D2). For D1, take the opposite result from what was rolled in the previous Round. Rounds 8 and 10 are entirely random.
- If the Tile where an enemy is to spawn hasn't been discovered yet, flip it over and orient it as preferred.
- If there is a Hero on the Field where the enemy spawns, a fight starts immediately.
- Enemy armies have 3 per Round.
- Enemy armies move at the end of every Round, starting with the Round they spawned.
- Enemy armies move as described in the rulebook (p. 33), but instead of capturing, they destroy everything in their path. Place Black Cubes on any Field they pass through, treating those Fields as empty from that point on.
- If an enemy's movement could go in different directions, the players decide which way they go.

COMBAT WITH ENEMY ARMIES

- Fighting enemy armies over more than one Combat Round does not cost .
- During a battle with an enemy army, a Hero can retreat whenever a friendly Unit is about to Activate. A retreating Main Hero loses all remaining and is returned to an allied Town or Settlement of their choice, keeping all remaining Units.
- Retreating Secondary Heroes are removed from the game, but their remaining Units are kept.
- Killed enemy Units do not respawn.

BOSS ARMY

- In Round 10, a Boss Army spawns. It is different from previous armies because it is Reinforced from a fixed pool of Neutral Units (Reinforcement pool = number in brackets in the table below).
- At the beginning of the 2nd Combat Round and every following Round, 2 Units Reinforce the remaining army from the shuffled reinforcement pool (up to a maximum of 5 Units) to continue the fight until either the player retreats or every Neutral Unit from the Reinforcement pool is killed. If the number of enemy Units at the beginning of a Round is 1 or lower, draw up to a total of 4 Units (i.e., there are always 4 or 5 enemy Units on the board after Reinforcing, if available).

- Place the Reinforcing Units on the enemy backline, starting from the left with the lowest Initiative (⚔ Units first). If necessary, continue on the next line in the same order.
- When a player retreats, the enemy army draws up to a minimum of 4 Units and takes these as starting Units to the next fight.

Strength of Enemy Armies

	Rounds 6 + 7	Rounds 8 + 9	Round 10
Easy	★★★★★	★★★★★	★★★★[1] (2★, 4★, 3★, 1★)
Normal	★★★★★	★★★★★	★★★★[1] (2★, 7★, 1★)
Hard	★★★★★	★★★★★	★★★★[1] (2★, 6★, 2★)
Impossible	★★★★★	★★★★★	★★★★[1] (7★, 3★)

[1] Always 1 Unit of Azure Dragons (starting Units of Boss Army). The rest is random.

COOPERATIVE SCENARIO

TITANS' STRONGHOLD

Author: Invoceusse

Source: Archon Studio Discord

A long time ago, a mighty fortress was built to house the fantastic and murderous Titans. No one has ever entered and returned to tell the tale. Now, there are rumors about the death of the guardians and an incredible amount of treasures, potentially including the best bow in the world. If this legend of the empty fort is true, it's time for excavation.
But for now, you and your allies need to find the keys spread across Antagarich to open the gate of the Titans' Stronghold.

SCENARIO LENGTH

This Scenario is played over 16 Rounds (15 on Impossible difficulty).

PLAYER SETUP

Player Count: 1 – 6

Starting Resources: 30, 8, 2

Starting Income: 10, 2, 1

Starting Units:

- A "Pack" of chosen Units
- A "Few" chosen Units

Town Buildings: None

Map Tile Pool: None

Additional Bonus: None

MAP SETUP

Take the following Map Tiles and arrange them as shown in the Scenario map layout (P stands for the number of players):

- P × Starting (I) Map Tile
- 2P × Far (II–III) Map Tile
- 2P × Near (IV–V) Map Tile
- (P + 1) × Center (VI–VII) Map Tile

NOTE: If you don't have enough VI–VII Tiles, you can use another Tile near I Tiles. The center of this Tile is the Titans' Stronghold.

VICTORY CONDITIONS

Kill all Units in the Titans' Stronghold (the center of Tile VI–VII next to Tiles I).

DEFEAT CONDITIONS

There are undefeated Units left in the Titans' Stronghold at the end of Round 16 (15 on Impossible difficulty).

TIMED EVENTS

4th, 8th and 12th Rounds:

- Remove all Black Cubes from every Windmill, Water Wheel, and Mystical Garden on the map.

ADDITIONAL RULES

- Remember: the center of VI–VII Tile next to all I Tiles is the Titans' Stronghold.
- No one can enter the Titans' Stronghold until all other VII Fields are flagged by any player.
- After defeating a Level VII Neutral army, instead of resolving the Field, the player chooses an option three times from the following list (an option may be chosen multiple times):
  - ▷ Another player (your choice) gains 5
  - ▷ Another player (your choice) gains 2
  - ▷ Another player (your choice) gains 1

  Then, flag the VII Field with a Faction Cube. (There is no bonus in solo play!)
- Ignore all yellow borders on Starting Tiles I.
- You can use your build Token to give your resources to another player.
- Two players can use their build Tokens to exchange Artifacts and/or Spells.
- Whenever a player Visits an Obelisk, that player rolls one treasure Die and one resource Die, and resolves one of them.
- When all VII Fields (excluding the Titans' Stronghold) are flagged, randomly draw and shuffle the specified number (see the next page) of Neutral Unit Cards from each of their corresponding Decks to create a separate Deck of Neutral Units for the Titans' Stronghold (the Deck of the Titans' Stronghold is sometimes split in two because certain Scenarios are otherwise impossible to implement with the Cards from certain expansions).
- Any time a Hero enters the Titans' Stronghold, they draw 5 Cards from the Titans' Stronghold Deck instead of from the Neutral Unit Card Decks. The Units are placed on the Combat Board (see page 29, "Neutral Unit Setup" in the Core Rulebook). Players attempt to defeat the Units they find in the Titans' Stronghold. Any Neutral Units defeated during Combat in the Titans' Stronghold are returned to their respective Neutral Unit Decks instead of the Titans' Stronghold Deck. Any Neutral Units surviving Combat in the Titans' Stronghold are shuffled back into the Titans' Stronghold Deck. If there are not enough Unit Cards in this Deck, draw as many Unit Cards as are available and place them on the Combat Board.
- Combat in the Titans' Stronghold now costs 1 to extend per Combat Round, just like Combat against non-Azure tier Units.
- Additionally, no player can:
  - ▷ Attack other Heroes.
  - ▷ Capture a Mine or Settlement that is already controlled.

  - ▷ On the same Map Tile as another player's Hero.
  - ▷ In another player's Town.
  - ▷ Next to another player's Hero.
- If you have no Units in your Unit Deck (after a battle or if you do not keep at least one Unit), return all your Units to your Faction's Unit pool (even if another player has one or more of your Units). This includes Units you've previously given to another player.

- When in another player's Town, you may Recruit or Reinforce their Units, either for them or for yourself. You need the other player's permission for it. Corresponding Dwellings or Citadel must be built to do so.
- For the last Mine/Settlement battle, add a ★ Neutral Unit. You have unlimited Turns for this battle. You can't use Expert Diplomacy to skip this battle!
- The first time you reach Level IV, gain your second specialty.
- When you reach Level IV, move your Token on the Level tracker to Level III.

WANDERING DRAGONS

Authors: Niilo Salonen, Juhani Salonen

The dragons of this region have grown increasingly erratic and dangerous. You and your allies have decided that the time has come to end their threat once and for all. Beware, however – some dragons have strayed from the Dragon Utopia and now roam the land. They will strike without hesitation if they feel threatened. Your mission is to slay all dragons in the area, both those guarding the Utopia and those wandering free.

SCENARIO LENGTH

10 Rounds

PLAYER SETUP

Player Count: 2–3

Starting Resources: 6, 2

Starting Income: 10, 2, 1

Starting Units:

- 2 × A "Few" of the cheapest Units

Town Buildings: Dwelling, Citadel

Map Tile Pool: Each player takes 1 random Far (II–III) Map Tile.

Take the following Map Tiles and arrange them as shown in the Scenario map layout (P stands for the number of players):

- P × Starting (I) Map Tiles
- P × Far (II–III) Map Tiles
- $2P$ × Near (IV–V) Map Tiles
- 1 × Center (VI–VII) Map Tile with Dragon Utopia

VICTORY CONDITIONS

Defeat the wandering dragons and flag the Dragon Utopia.

TIMED EVENTS

4th Round:

- Remove all Black Cubes from all Water Wheels and Windmills on the map.
- The wandering dragons gain +1 to the movement dice roll this Round (see Additional Rules below).

8th Round:

- Repeat events of the 4th Round.

ADDITIONAL RULES

Randomly draw the following Neutral dragon Unit Cards into two Dragon Decks: Dragon Utopia (DU) and wandering dragons (WD):

Easy:

- DU: 2 ×
- WD: 2 × (+1 if 3 players)

Normal:

- DU: 2 ×, 1 ×
- WD: 1 ×, 1 × (+1 if 3 players)

Hard:

- DU: 3 ×
- WD: 1 ×, 2 × (+1 if 3 players)

Impossible:

- DU: 3 ×, 1 ×
- WD: 2 ×, 1 × (+1 if 3 players)

- The WD start at the center of the undiscovered Center Map Tile and are marked with a token.
- The WD do not discover Map Tiles they move through.
- The WD move at the end of every Round. Roll 2 Attack Dice and add 1 to the result. On a result of:
  - 1 or more, the WD move that amount of Fields toward the player asset (Hero, Town, or Settlement) that is closest to them.
  - 0, the WD stay in place.
  - −1, the WD move one Field toward the DU.
- If two or more player assets are equidistant, the WD prioritize 1) Heroes, 2) Towns and 3) Settlements. If this does not resolve which direction the WD should move, roll a die to determine the target.
- The WD attack if they reach a Field with a Hero, a Town, or a Settlement with a Hero. In this case, the battle is fought until the end without a chance for retreat. If the WD reach a Settlement without a Hero in it, remove the Faction Cube from it.
- The WD may move through Blocked Fields but cannot end their movement on one.
- The player who defeats the WD gains .
- Obelisk: Roll and and resolve both.

- Players can use their Build Token to initiate trade with one other chosen player. The two players can freely exchange Resources and can exchange Artifacts or Spells from their hand as if their Heroes were adjacent.
- During the game, players assemble a shared army. Every player can field Units from the shared army during Combat (shared Units' abilities can be activated each Round by only one player).
- Upon flagging an Obelisk, discard the top Card from each Neutral Units Deck except ★. You can recruit one of these Units. Units recruited this way go into the shared army.
- During Combat at the Dragon Utopia, one of the Neutral ★ Units is always the Azure Dragon and the Neutral army uses the AI Deck. Reshuffle the AI Deck and AI Spell Deck at the end of Combat.
- After winning Combat at the Dragon Utopia, no Faction Cube is placed on the Dragon Utopia Field. The victorious player puts one of their surviving Faction Units into the shared army and can redistribute their remaining Resources among other players, after which that player gets removed from the game.

COOPERATIVE SCENARIO

THE AMBUSHED ACCORD

Author: Wololoeren

The war had dragged on far too long. Armies were shattered, lands burned, and hope had dwindled to barely a whisper. At last, the rival lords agreed to set aside their grievances and forge an Accord — a fragile peace born of desperation.
Messengers rode beneath white banners, oaths were sworn, and for the first time in years, the clash of steel gave way to uneasy silence. Yet peace has its own enemies.
As the allied hosts gathered in the valley of Laren's Cross, dawn broke with the sound of horns — not of welcome, but of war.
Out of the mist, enemy armies struck with deadly precision. Someone had betrayed the Accord.
Now, surrounded and outnumbered, the fate of your alliance lies in your hands. Stand together — or fall alone.

VICTORY CONDITIONS

To win the Scenario, a Hero must obtain the Grail Token and bring it to their Faction Town.

DEFEAT CONDITIONS

If the Grail is not obtained at least once by the end of the 13th Round, the game ends, and all players lose the Scenario.

If the Grail Token has been obtained, the players gain additional time (until the end of the 16th Round) to bring the Grail to their Faction's Town. Otherwise, all players lose the Scenario.

During this Scenario:

- When a player Visits an Obelisk, they must resolve one of the following effects:
  1. [Cleanse] The player receives one of the following boons, depending on how many Obelisks they have Visited:
     (a) [1st Obelisk] You gain a Secondary Hero. Place their model on this Field. If you already have one, gain 6 instead. Then, choose one enemy player to discard 1 random Card from their hand.
     (b) [2nd Obelisk] Increase your , , or income by 1 step.
     (c) [3rd Obelisk] Roll 2 and choose 1 to resolve; then, gain and .
     (d) [4th Obelisk] Remove up to 4 Cards from your hand, except Statistic Cards; then, search each corresponding Deck for a Card of your choice and put it in your hand.
  2. [Sacrifice] Remove a * Faction Unit Card from your Unit Deck in exchange for:
     (a) *: Gain 6 , 3 , and 1 . Additionally, if the Unit Card was on the "Pack" side, Search (4) the Minor Artifact Deck.
     (b) *: Gain 12 , 6 , and 2 . Additionally, if the Unit Card was on the "Pack" side, Search (3) the Major Artifact Deck.
     (c) *: Gain 18 , 9 , and 3 . Additionally, Search (2) the Relic Card Deck. Finally, if the Unit Card was on the "Pack" side, Search (2) the Unit Deck; you may Recruit one of these Units for half the cost (rounded down).
- A player that chooses Sacrifice at an Obelisk gains the title of "Blood Knight." Place a red Faction Cube on their Hero portrait to mark this effect. A Blood Knight may never choose the Cleanse option when Visiting an Obelisk.
- A player that chooses Cleanse at an Obelisk gains the title of "Grail Knight." Place a blue Faction Cube on their Hero portrait to mark this effect. A Grail Knight may never choose the Sacrifice option when Visiting an Obelisk.
- When a player chooses Sacrifice at an Obelisk, place a number of Faction Cubes on the sacrificed Unit Card and on the Obelisk Field equivalent to the number of times the player has chosen the Sacrifice option. For example, if the player is sacrificing for the second time, place 2 Faction Cubes on the Unit Card and 2 Faction Cubes on the Obelisk Field.
- A player who possesses the title of "Grail Knight" may, after Visiting an Obelisk, Recruit an enemy Unit sacrificed at that Obelisk for half the cost (rounded down); if a "Pack" was sacrificed, the player may choose to Recruit "Few" instead.
- If a Unit Recruited at an Obelisk is defeated, remove it.

- A player who possesses no title or the title of "Blood Knight" may not use the Diplomacy Ability Card. If a player who possesses no title or the title of "Blood Knight" draws the Diplomacy Ability Card, they may show it to the other players, then discard it and draw a new Ability Card in its stead.
- A player who possesses the title of "Grail Knight" may not use the Diplomacy Ability Card to Recruit Neutral ★ Units.
- Whenever an Astrologers Proclaim or Event Card that allows you to Recruit Neutral Units is drawn, ignore it and draw a new Astrologers Proclaim or Event Card.
- Players can use their Deck of Might & Magic when paying gold to defend their Faction Town.
- Ignore Combat encounters on the Field with the Grail.
- Players may not Visit the Field with the Grail Token unless they have already Visited at least two Obelisks or the Grail Token has been taken by any Hero at least once.
- To obtain the Grail Token, a player's Hero must spend 2 on the Field with the Grail.
- If a player does not possess the title of "Blood Knight," they must Remove a Faction Unit Card from their Unit Deck immediately after obtaining the Grail Token. This effect can only occur once per player.
- If another Hero defeats the Hero with the Grail Token, they also take the Grail Token.
- If a Hero with the Grail Token Surrenders, the Grail Token is placed on the hex where the Hero Surrendered.
- If a Neutral army defeats the Hero with the Grail Token, the Grail Token is placed on the Field where the Hero was defeated.
- If a Hero with the Grail Token casts Town Portal or uses the Inferno Faction Castle Gate building, the Grail Token is placed on the hex where the Spell was cast or the building used.
- The Grail Token behaves like a Permanent Card that does not count towards your hand limit and cannot be discarded; it grants the following effect when played: "∞ Once during each Combat, if the Hero is a Blood Knight, discard a Card to remove up to 2 from your Units and assign it to enemy Units."
- A Hero with the Grail Token who possesses the title of "Grail Knight" may pay 10 or 3 at any Temple map location to cleanse the Grail. Place a blue Faction Cube on the Grail Token to mark this effect.
- Once cleansed, the Grail Token behaves like a Permanent Card that does not count towards your hand limit and cannot be discarded; it grants the following effect when played: "∞ Once during each Combat Round, if the Hero is a Grail Knight, discard a Card to remove up to 2 from your Units."

- 2 × Far (II–III) Map Tile
- 5 × Near (IV–V) Map Tile
- 2 × Center (VI–VII) Map Tiles, blindly choosing one with the Random Town Field and the other with a Dragon Utopia Field.

VICTORY CONDITIONS

When the Random Town is captured for the first time, players continue playing the current Round and then play one additional final Round. The player controlling the Random Town at the end of that final Round is the winner.

DEFEAT CONDITIONS

At the end of the 10th Round, if no player controls the Random Town, both players lose the game (the local ruler returns to the castle and regains control of the province). However, if the Random Town is first captured in the 10th Round, the game proceeds as normal to its additional final Round (in this case, the 11th Round).

TIMED EVENTS

4th and 8th Round:

- Remove all Black Cubes from Water Wheels and Windmills on the map.
- All Heroes gain +1

ADDITIONAL RULES

During this Scenario:

- Whenever an Obelisk is Visited for the first time, the Visiting player rolls 2 ⚒ and resolves both results.
- The Random Town is defended by Walls and a Gate when owned by a player, but it only has an Arrow Tower if that player already has a Citadel.
- Like any other Town, when the Random Town is owned by a player, it is a valid location for that player to:
  - ▷ Place a newly Recruited Secondary Hero.
  - ▷ Place the Main Hero when defeated.
  - ▷ Temporarily transport the army to, for 8 🪙, when the Random Town is attacked.
- The first player to Visit the Dragon Utopia (after defeating the defending ★ Unit(s)) draws Cards from the Neutral Units ★ Deck until a Dragon not associated with any Faction is drawn. The player may immediately Recruit that Dragon for free.

2-PLAYER SCENARIO

3-PLAYER SCENARIO

BOSS: AZURE DRAGON

Little is known of the Azure Dragon. It is both rare and mighty, thus few have seen it, and fewer still have survived its attacks. This powerful creature is not much bigger than most dragons, but is said to be capable of enduring prolonged physical attack. It is said those standing face-to-face with an Azure Dragon tend to freeze from pure fear.

Fighting the Azure Dragon:

1. Place the Azure Dragon Miniature/Card on the battlefield. Ignore its ability.
2. Prepare a pile of discarded Artifacts and shuffle it.

Rules:

- Hoarding Tendency: At the start of each Turn, randomly choose a Card from the shuffled pile of discarded Artifacts. If the Artifact is:
  - ▷ A weapon: The Dragon gains one Breath attack that targets three creatures in a row. The Unit directly hit in the middle suffers full damage, while the Units on both sides suffer 3 less.
  - ▷ A piece of armor, shield, or clothing: The Dragon gains 3 , represented with spare Faction Cubes. Remove them after they have absorbed damage.
  - ▷ A trinket: The Azure Dragon roars and summons an ice storm, causing all creatures to freeze in fear. This results in every Unit moving only 1 Field per Round, while the Azure Dragon can fly to any Field on the Combat Board.
- The Azure Dragon is immune to all Spells cast against it.
- Buffs and enhancements cast on player's Units remain effective.

Easy	Normal	Hard	Impossible
No additional changes	22	30	40 +2 +2

BOSS: CRYSTAL DRAGON

Made entirely from red crystal and brought to life through magical means, the Crystal Dragon is literally semitransparent, lit from the center by its magical heart. Used frequently as a training tool for young dragon slayers, many wizards also create these creatures for the crystal they shed.

Fighting the Crystal Dragon:

1. Place the Crystal Dragon Miniature/Card on the battlefield. Ignore its ability.
2. Place two Gold Golems and two Diamond Golems on the battlefield.

Rules:

- At the start of every battle Round, check if any of the Golems were removed in the previous Round. If so, spawn one new Diamond or Gold Golem (chosen randomly) in the last row of the battlefield.
- Golem Devour: The Crystal Dragon can consume Golems to regain health. During its Turn, if the Crystal Dragon is adjacent to a Golem, it can choose to consume it, removing a certain amount of based on the type of Golem consumed:
  - ▷ Consuming a Gold Golem: Remove 2 .
  - ▷ Consuming a Diamond Golem: Remove 4 .

  Note: The Crystal Dragon can only consume one Golem per Turn.
- Golem Abilities: Gold and Diamond Golems do not possess any additional abilities beyond those specified on their Cards. They primarily serve as fodder for the Crystal Dragon's health regeneration.
- The Crystal Dragon retaliates twice per battle Round.

Easy	Normal	Hard	Impossible
No additional changes	22	26 +1 Retaliation	32 +1 Retaliation Remove additional 2 by consuming Golems

BOSS: RUST DRAGON REQUIRES FORTRESS EXPANSION

Rust Dragons are known to hunt Gorgons, and live and feed in sulfur mines. With this appetite, Rust Dragons spew a concentrated acid as their primary attack. This acid is capable of eating through the strongest armor, lowering the defense of its target while inflicting further damage.

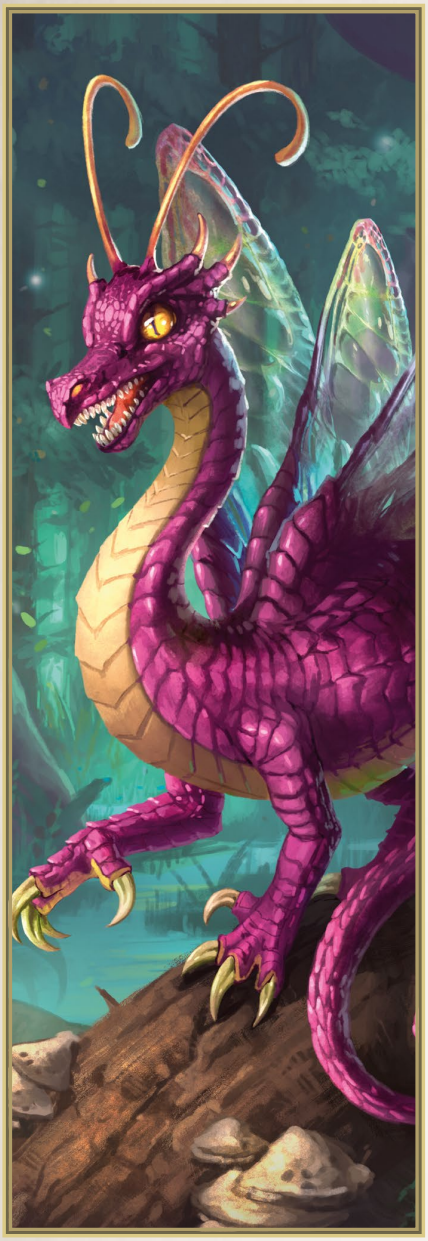
Fighting the Rust Dragon:

1. Place the Rust Dragon Miniature/Card on the battlefield. Ignore its ability.
2. Prepare four spare M&M Deck Cards to mark pools of acid.

Rules:

- The Rust Dragon is immune to basic Spells.
- Corrosive Vomit: The Rust Dragon has a powerful crowd control ability that allows it to spew four pools of sulfuric acid onto the battlefield at the beginning of each Combat Round. Use M&M Deck Cards placed face down to mark their locations.
- The Rust Dragon cannot place pools on the same Fields as in the previous Round. Mark the Fields with spare Faction Cubes to indicate where the pools were located.
- The pools of sulfuric acid block battlefield Fields and impede movement for one Round only. They serve as Obstacles for both players and the Dragon.
- The Rust Dragon's passive ability, Corrosion, decreases an enemy Unit's armor by 2 with each attack. Place a spare Faction Cube on the Unit's Card to indicate this effect. Corrosion stacks up to -4 .

Easy	Normal	Hard	Impossible
No additional changes	20	32	40 +1 to Corrosion armor decrease



BOSS: FAERIE DRAGON REQUIRES RAMPART EXPANSION

Faerie Dragons are deceptively cute, but in truth, are mischievous tricksters. Little is known about these notorious troublemakers. What is known is found more in storybooks than magical tomes. Some say they are invisible. Some say they can cast spells. Some say Magic Mirror is one of their natural defensive traits.

Fighting the Faerie Dragon:

1. Place 2 Faerie Dragon Cards on the battlefield. Ignore their abilities.
2. Place 1 Dendroid Card from the ☆ Neutral Units Deck onto the battlefield, and place 3 additional Cards face down to represent the other 3 Dendroids.

Rules:

- The Faerie Dragon is immune to basic Spells.
- The Faerie Dragon can cast up to two different Spells per battle Round.
- All Spells are displayed visibly next to the Combat Board:
    1. The first Spell is Lightning.
    2. The second Spell is Cure.
    3. For the third Spell, the Faerie Dragon randomly picks an expert Spell from the Spell Deck, excluding Map Spells. If a Map Spell is picked, draw another Spell.
- Trickster: In the first Round of the battle, the first targeted Faerie Dragon is a mere mirage. It inflicts damage, but disappears from the battlefield when hit by an enemy.
- Dendroids' Ability: Each Dendroid holds a key to the Faerie Dragon's power. After the second Dendroid dies, start removing one Spell from the Faerie Dragon's spellbook, beginning with the third Spell. Decrease the dragon's Spell Empowerment by one (starting from its maximum) upon vanquishing the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Dendroids. When there are no Dendroids left, the dragon loses the ability to cast Spells.

Easy	Normal	Hard	Impossible
No additional changes	18	26	32 +1 Mirage

THE STORY

Distant Threat

Catherine Ironfist rubbed her tired, worn thumb across the image of her father, King Gryphonheart, in a locket. She wanted to remember the good, valiant parts of his life rather than his actions in unlife. Her gaze turned to her cracked skin and mangled thumbnail, and it reminded her of how hard she had fought to be where she was.

The weight of Erathia rested on her shoulders. It had only been weeks since the siege and recapture of Steadwick, and resources, as well as manpower, were in short supply. Still, with time, the stony seat of the castle would be sufficient to further liberate the realm.

One such problem was weighing on her mind. After replacing the locket in her hand with a missive, she re-read a particular entry about a rising necromancer named Vhidhax. Rumors were that the fiend had stolen precious artifacts that further enhanced his power over the dead. While rumors are usually best left to fishwives and children, this one aligned with information about an army growing in strength, and she dreaded the thought of the two problems colliding and crashing over her weary crown.

Late that evening, Catherine was venting to Rion about the relative drudgery of rebuilding Steadwick. She'd just about fallen asleep in her chair when a heavy knock turned her attention to the room's large door that sported intricately carved shields from various long-gone baronies.

The wooden portal flung open before she could spring up, revealing a wide-eyed and panicked guard. No words came from the man; whatever haunted him seemed absolute. Instead, he merely pointed with a trembling hand toward the window across the room.

Catherine shot a look at Rion before the two darted toward the open air of the rectangular window. What they saw shocked them, too, and while Catherine's heart sank, she gripped Rion's shoulder with surprising strength. When he looked back at her with a slight wince, she only returned a stony look of resolve.

Danger had come to Steadwick again. Atop a hill in the far distance, overlooking many of the defenseless farmsteads Catherine had in her charge, a predator swept its gaze like a wolf might hungrily eye sheep. A magnificently terrifying azure hue wafted from a Ghost Dragon's massive, extended wings like an ethereal heat haze.

Reverent Allies

While Catherine trusted her horse, having fought tooth and nail with the battle-hardened steed for as long as she could remember, it shuddered in hesitation as they approached the majestic, columned main building of the settlement. Catherine had also felt the almost unsettling holy power in the area when, suddenly, the sound of rushing wings caught her attention. Her gaze snapped upward to catch sight of something approaching.

The early morning sun was bright, and the figure that swooped low was in front of it. The silhouette of wings was visible, and Catherine thought it to be a Gryphon at first. However, as it closed in on them, it became apparent it was the shape of a man with wings instead. It caught Catherine's horse off guard, and she had to catch the reins and wrench them hard to steady herself and calm the frightened animal before it could fling her from her seat.

With lightning speed, the figure landed mere feet from them to reveal the stubbled, handsome face of a young man with golden, curled locs and impressively robust bronze armor sculpted to his muscular form. He was one of the famed Archangels to have stayed near Steadwick after Catherine's victory. While the forces behind her fell to their knees in reverence, she only nodded with stern resolve.

With a deeper, and more reverberating voice than any man, the angel was first to speak. "Queen Catherine. I expected you might come when I spied the rot taking form in the hills."

Catherine responded with a smile. It was good to see she still had allies; her forces would need bolstering to take on the undead. "It's good to see you, my friend," she said. "It seems Steadwick is threatened again, and I ride to root out the evil before it can seed. Would you join me at my side?"

"Of course, my queen!" the angel barked. "Combined, no evil can thwart our advance!" As the final words left his lips and began to echo, he drew his weapon. The longsword ignited as it left its sheath, and its blazing glory had most of those kneeling averting their eyes. Immediately after, he took to the air and began circling the area again. Catherine smiled wide as she watched more angels appear, then looked back to her forces and extended an open palmed arm forward in a command to march.

Add a "Few" Archangels to your army.

Bait And Switch

Catherine couldn't wait to drive her sword through the heart of the Ghost Dragon, then lop the head from the one commanding it. She pushed her powerful mount forward, charging toward the waiting, taunting foes. While the great number of shambling undead, mostly animated citizens from nearby townships, was impossible to ignore, they wouldn't stop her. With a thunderous crash, she slammed past the forward lines, knocking off limbs and cracking bones.

Seconds later, she was halfway through the mass of bodies when the stench of rotten flesh and the true immensity of her enemy's numbers hit her. Dread Knights flanked the dragon she'd been racing towards. Worse still, a robed, decrepit-looking figure was watching from the rear of the enemy lines. Despite its wretched appearance, it had an immensely powerful presence to it. A stinging tingle shot up Catherine's spine as she felt, more than saw, its eyes return her gaze. More than she could take on alone, she swung her steed in a circle to reform with her mounted allies, then looked to the sky just as an Archangel came crashing down onto the dragon.

Shockingly, instead of slamming into the beast, the angel flew through it like it was made of air. He hit the ground with a crunching thud before, suddenly, the dragon's image began to shift and shimmer, then disintegrate. The Dread Knights did the same, and replacing them were throngs of further undead that now threatened to encircle Catherine and her forward forces.

Catherine's eyes shot toward what she believed was the necromancer. It stood motionless a moment longer before cackling laughter cut through the air, and its image wafted away into the night air just as the others had.

It was a trap. The necromancer and his strongest forces were not there, and Catherine would have to fight her way out from under a crush of undead, wasting precious time and lives.

- Replace the Ghost Dragons and Dread Knights with ★ neutral Zombies and Skeletons.
- Play "Cloak of the Undead King IV" and "Cloak of the Undead King VI" onto the packs of Zombies and Skeletons, respectively.
- Remove the AI Might and Magic Deck from the game, the undead fight on their own.

The Chase Begins

Catherine huffed, sweat beading on her forehead as the last undead fell with wet thuds. Her forces were strong, and simple reanimations weren't the kind of threat to stop them. She just hoped… Her stomach churned as her gaze turned back to Steadwick.

An orange glow, far too bright for torchlight, was coming from the castle. As she watched in horror, thick black smoke began to rise from the towers and parapets. Steadwick was burning.

Rion quickly caught up to her, his horse panting as hard as he was. He began to speak but couldn't find the words as his mind raced. Instead, he placed a hand on his queen's shoulder.

The necromancer had played his opening move and won.

Just before Catherine turned to her regrouping forces, she spotted the spectral blue of the real Ghost Dragon in the distance. Its work destroying Steadwick's defenses had been finished.

Archangels circled overhead, and Catherine threw her head to the sky, tears welling at the thought of losing what she had worked so hard to build. "Find him!" she roared, addressing whatever gods were listening as well as the angels above.

"Is that… wise?" Rion asked softly.

Catherine responded with fire in her eyes. "What good is rebuilding a ruin when the fiend will just continue to play his tricks?" she said. "No. If we want to save Steadwick, we have to end him before he can further strengthen himself."

- Remove Archangels from your army.
- Keep the rest of your forces and resources for the next Scenario.
- Reset your Hero per the normal campaign rules.

THE STORY

Into the Badlands

Catherine crossed arms and leaned on her saddle horn as she peered out over the wasteland they'd been led to. The Archangels had gone ahead of the small force she'd scraped together, and she wondered if it had been a mistake to let them go. With the enemy stronghold still nowhere in sight, locating it would take time, and the inhospitable landscape would not be kind.

Rion pulled up next to her as he finished gulping the last contents of a water pouch. He wiped the dribble and sweat from his face before saying anything. "Not the best place to do any fighting. Besides the poor conditions, I've heard the locals are known for their particular… ferocity."

"Well then, we'll just have to bring them to heel," Catherine replied coldly. The truth was she was more worried about that possibility than she let on, but she had to maintain her composure to protect the image of her strength.

"You think they'll fight for us?" Rion asked with a raised eyebrow.

Catherine tightly gripped a heavy sack of coin by her side and heaved it into her lap so the contents jingled like tiny bells to emphasize her point. "I think generous arrangements can be made. For the rest, the sword will do."

The First Relic

Ahead, a clearing of dry, cracked ground gave way to a large Obelisk protruding from the ground like a massive marker. Catherine had seen enough magical artifacts in her time that she could tell the structure was a place of power. Throwing an arm forward, she signaled Rion to proceed with an inspection.

The mage approached slowly, removing a glove to touch the cold stone of the smoothly cut sides with his skin. Intricate runes were carved in it, detailing all manner of scripture in long-lost tongues. As awe-inspiring as it was, equally apparent was the time-worn damage.

After a moment, he turned to Catherine. "It's a transport beacon," he said. "Like a monolith, but with a shorter range. At least… it was. It's damaged, and where the magic in the runes should be strong, even glowing, they're dark, and any power is long decayed."

Catherine dismounted and slowly inspected the area before saying anything. "Some of the damage is recent. I can still feel residual heat; the Archangels were here."

"How can you be sure? Surely, some would have found us by now and notified us of their progress."

"They've never let me down," Catherine grunted. "Come, let's see if other such beacons exist."

Showdown

Sounds of battle perked the ears of Catherine's forces, and she urged her steed forward to catch sight of the combatants.

Rounding crags and jagged rocks jutting at all angles, another Obelisk revealed itself with the final moments of a battle taking place around it. Several Archangels were on the ground, locked in combat with the remains of a larger undead force.

Approaching at speed, Catherine raised a fist in the air to salute the holy warriors, and several rasped their bronze chestplates in return.

"Queen Catherine, you've saved us the trouble of finding you," the lead angel said in his deep voice. He gestured to the Obelisk with an open palm as the sounds of battle finally died. "The foes meant to keep us from these structures by destroying them. We barely managed to intercept them in time to preserve this one."

Rion trotted past them as they spoke, intent on inspecting the intact Obelisk. As before, he began to place his hand on the cold stone, but recoiled before making contact. "It's active!" he said excitedly. "This may be the break we need. With luck, this will take us directly to the enemy stronghold."

Catherine smiled, reaching to clasp the arm of the angel in thanks for his work. She looked back at the ragtag group of forces she'd gathered and hoped it would be enough for a siege.

- Add a "Few" Archangels to your army.
- You may now teleport to the enemy town on Tile S1. If you choose not to, you may in the future by spending one at this Obelisk.

The Escape

With the thick, macabre, almost demonic-looking walls breached and the bulk of the necromancer's forces slain, the castle belonged to Catherine. It was an eye for an eye, and she relished driving the final blow into the last enemy ranks still in the courtyard herself.

Unfortunately, after a frantic search of the grounds, Vhidhax himself was nowhere in sight. Catherine raced up the walls just in time to peer over the side and catch sight of the necromancer fleeing with a sizable retinue that had quietly slipped away during the battle. He was traveling north, further into the badlands and away from her home. Catherine's campaign wasn't finished yet.

Catherine turned to observe the battlefield from above. The butcher's bill had been large. Both fresh and long-decaying bodies lay strewn about, several Archangels among them. Rion caught up with her a minute later, and the two exchanged looks of exhaustion.

"It's done," Rion said through panting breaths.

"No. The necromancer lives, and he flees north."

"But… our forces. The Archangels are too few to continue; what hope do we have?"

"There is always hope, my friend. We'll use this castle as a base to resupply, and then we need to give chase before the fiend regains his strength. Steadwick will never be safe otherwise!"

"This is foolish," Rion sighed. "We don't need to fight this hard; Vhidhax is not your father, Catherine…"

- Remove Archangels from your army, if possible.
- Keep the rest of your army and resources for the next Scenario.
- Reset your Hero per the normal campaign rules.

The Race

Stacks of dry, cracked parchment sat next to dusty tomes on a table's blackened, rough-cut stone slab. Catherine slumped over the numerous texts stashed throughout the necromancer's chambers while her eyes frantically scanned the pages. She was searching for any clue to her enemy's plans.

After fruitless hours, she huffed and sent a moldering volume crashing through a stack of paper as exhaustion threatened to overcome her. She was about to spin and leave the room when the corner of her eye caught a particular scribbling, revealed by her destructive act. An ornate diagram, hastily scribbled, depicted what Catherine supposed might be some kind of necromantic summoning ritual. Pulling the frail parchment closer, while most of it didn't make sense to her, it didn't take a mage to know what the dark drawings detailed. They were the ritual instructions for raising Ghost Dragons from dead dragons.

Then it dawned on her. Old tales told of an ancient Dragon Utopia in the badlands. Vhidhax must be attempting to overtake the majestic creatures and use them against her in a last-ditch effort. She frowned at the thought of her weakened enemy being able to defeat the dragons. But if he did… If she missed something, he would have newfound strength enough to overpower her battered forces. She clenched her fist, crushing the frail paper to dust before rushing to the doorway to gather who she could.

To her surprise, the necropolis' courtyard was abuzz with energy. She placed her hands on the overlook's railing and peered over the edge to spy a host of knights in the color and flair of various baronies.

Rion came rushing up to her a moment later, intent on delivering news of their new guests. "Queen Catherine!" he said excitedly. "Lordships around Steadwick heard of the tragedy and have sent their champions to aid us. The knights spent days tracking and catching up to us, and they mean to join us and see the campaign through."

Catherine smiled wide. "Then tell them to get ready; the race is on."

Add a "Few" Champions to your army.

Checkmate

The broken remains of Vhidhax looked no grander than any of his many minions. Necromantic energy had stripped the flesh from him long ago; without that power, his presence and ill-willed malevolence were gone as well.

Catherine wiped blood, sweat, and dirt from her face. Rion had been right; the necromancer was not her father, but perhaps his slaying would ease the sting of her family discord and the sting of betrayal, at least a little.

Rion approached, and Catherine turned before embracing him in a rare moment of emotion. The last time he'd seen his queen like this was when they were in Steadwick together, and he looked a little embarrassed as he was lost for words. The two studied each other momentarily, silently checking on each other. Rion thought she looked much older and weathered from the ordeal, but he was happy to see a twinkle in his queen's eyes again.

Her duty fulfilled and her seat secure, Catherine would see Steadwick rebuilt with Erathia just a little safer… for now.

- If neither you or the enemy reached the Dragon Utopia, read "A Queen's Right"
- If the enemy army reached the Dragon Utopia before being defeated, read "A Queen's Lament"
- If you reached the Dragon Utopia and defeated the dragons within before defeating the enemy, read "A Queen's Fury"

A Queen's Fury

Catherine's hard eyes scanned the badlands from a window high on the Dragon Utopia. While coming to blows with the famed dragon guardians was regrettable, she'd brought even them to heel, and the palace was hers. No one would challenge her reign, not with the badlands under her control or the remaining dragons in her retinue.

Worn and tired faces looked up at her outside the fortress, like beggars asking for scraps. What was left of who she'd brought into the hostile landscape was silently requesting the right to return home, yet the badlands were an enticing prize, and the bloodlust whipped up in the Queen of Erathia hadn't subsided yet.

It took much convincing from Rion before Catherine finally softened. Reports from Steadwick were thrust in her face, and the mage's gentle nature reminded her that there were still those in her lands who needed her guidance. So, finally, she ordered only a select few to watch over the badlands with the remaining mercenaries and dragons while she returned home with the rest.

A Queen's Right

A strange, deep calling swelled within Catherine. She turned her focus to the majestic Dragon Utopia, with its rust-colored walls and pointed turrets. It was an odd place for dragons to call home, yet its sheer presence was undeniable.

Catherine approached slowly, with the remains of her battered forces following cautiously. Reaching the foot of the fortress, it was only a moment before the majestic snout of an azure dragon crawled into view from the large, curved, open entry to the stony fortress. The rest of the creature soon followed, and with a stretch of wings, it stared down at the human queen. While many fell to their knees, Catherine looked up to meet the dragon's gaze, and the two shared a moment of understanding between royalty. It appeared the dragon knew what fate it had been spared from, and in thanks, it bowed to the human. After a reflective moment, Catherine nodded, then turned, satisfied with the interaction.

His steed at a trot, Rion quickly approached. "Well? Are we going inside?" he asked curiously.

"There's no need," Catherine replied. "I saw it in her eyes; the dragon knows what we did today. We have their thanks and perhaps a favor to call on in the future. Gods know we need it…"

Catherine drew her sword and reared her own steed high, presenting herself before her remaining forces with the dragon silhouetted behind her. After a rousing speech that stirred the hearts of man and beast alike, she galloped to the rear lines to turn the formation toward home.

A Queen's Lament

Reality set in after the adrenaline and euphoria of a hard-fought victory wore off. The battlefield was a nightmare of horrors. Ghost Dragon corpses faded away as the last of their power died with them, and the scattered, broken bodies of both sides lay in clumps of gory remains. The cost had been high…

Catherine regretted she couldn't save the dragons from their fate. If things had been different, they might have been strong allies or at least sentinels to keep the local badland creatures in check. Now, it was hard to tell what would leak from the unchecked wilds into other regions or townships under her charge. Caution had won her the day, but she wondered if it was enough. Would actions like this cause her downfall one day?

Home felt distant in the haze of fury that Catherine had been prisoner to. As she trotted past the remains of those who had fought for her, her heart swelled with emotion. It was war, and loss was inevitable. She turned to the remaining few and threw a weak hand forward out of the badlands. It was time to pick up the pieces.

- The difficulty Level of every Combat encounter on the map increases by one till the end of the Scenario (see page 35, "Field Difficulty Level Table" in the Core Rulebook).
- The Enemy Charging Heroes have only 2 Movement Points, instead of 3. They ignore everything else (including Mines and Settlements if possible) and go straight for the player's Faction Town (on Map Tile S6). They do not pursue the player directly, but if they happen to be on the same Map Tile, they will attack the player's Main Hero (not Secondary).

THE STORY

Congratulations

You are to be congratulated on your progress so far. You have laid waste to Eastern Erathia, and are now within striking distance of the Erathian capital of Steadwick. You must capture the capital quickly!

News

Not only have Bracada and AvLee sent reinforcements, but we have received news that Queen Catherine Ironfist is marching a sizeable army from the south. We must control the capital and its garrisons before she arrives.

You have just received a report on the progress of Queen Catherine. Forces from Nighon and Eeofol are attempting to delay her march to Steadwick, but doubt that they can delay her more than two or three months.

First Report

You receive a report from the south. Queen Catherine's forces have been sufficiently delayed, allowing you at least two months more to reach the capitol, but our own forces have suffered significant losses. Do not let their sacrifice go to waste.

Second Report

You receive a report from the south. Our forces continue to throw themselves in the path of Queen Catherine's armies, yet she continues to march northward. You have, at most, three or four weeks before she can reach the capital.

First Warning

Queen Catherine's march continues – her forces are just two weeks away. If you do not hurry, we will not have time to secure the capital before her arrival.

Second Warning

Your scouts report sighting Queen Catherine's army seven days to the southwest. If she reaches the capitol before you, all is lost.

The Ending

This morning, a massive army lead by Queen Catherine Ironfist arrived at the Erathian capitol of Steadwick. We have no choice but to retreat our forces. You have failed us... miserably.

If Steadwick has not been captured, the Scenario is lost!

ADDITIONAL RULES

During this "Inferno" Campaign Scenario, the following rules apply:

- Your Main Hero can only travel in Inferno Map Tiles. You cannot enter any other Map Tile type.
- You cannot recruit a Secondary Hero.
- You cannot attack Enemy Charging Heroes. You can only defend against them while inside of Kleesive.
- Gain 3 when you defeat a Charging Hero's Army.
- If an Enemy Charging Hero enters a Map Tile or Field that your Main Hero is on (exception is if you are in your Inferno city Kleesive), or if a charging Hero attacks Kleesive and you are not present in your city of Kleesive, you are immediately transported back to Kleesive, you lose any remaining Movement Points you have, lose 3 , gain , and randomly discard 1 Card from your hand.
- Enemy Charging Heroes move only 2 . The Final Charging Army moves 4 . They take the shortest route to Kleesive. If you own a Mine in a Map Tile they enter, they will capture the Mine (but will not "backtrack" to do so), and then continue along the shortest route to Kleesive. They ignore everything else. They also make use of Stables 1 bonus.
- Enemy Charging Heros always move amongst each to not "block" each other's paths (thus slowing each other down). The Enemy Charging Hero that can get closest to Kleesive will move before any others.
- Castle and Rampart already have all Mines controlled in their territory (non-Inferno Map Tiles). Place enemy Cubes on all of their Mines.
- Your Walls, Gates, and Arrow Tower in Kleesive are rebuilt after each battle.

- Enemy Units will fly over Walls and Gates to attack your Units whenever possible.
- Enemy Units will always attack the Arrow Tower once there are no other Units to attack.
- Enemy Units will always attack your Units if possible. Only when that is not possible, then the Gate, and then Walls will be attacked.
- During Combat with AI, treat Artifacts in Skill Decks just like Abilities. The "Sword of Hellfire" will be used in attacks and retaliation attacks. It is not used when attacking Walls or Gates, and remains in effect on the Unit. "Shield of the Damned" takes effect when any Charging Army Unit takes attack or retaliation damage. If the AI Skill Card advises to "do it again", the Artifacts are not played again immediately, but instead are played as soon as the next Unit is able to use them.

THE STORY

Refusal

Queen Catherine Ironfist refuses our ransom demand, and they are amassing armies for a rescue operation. Clan Kreelah, prepare our defenses! Protect Kleesive at all costs. We have the advantage.

Enemy at the gates

Castle and AvLee armies will be at our gates soon. They must come through the volcanic corridor to our east. We cannot meet them in battle on the field, we must defend from within Kleesive, where their magic is diminished on this cursed ground.

Scout Report

Our scouts have reported that the enemy has acquired 2 very powerful major artifacts with the help of local seers. They are fools to think these will help them overcome our Kreegan fortress.

COMPETITIVE PLAY

We've compiled some custom rules and best practices for fair competitive play. They are intended for Clash Scenarios, where they reduce randomness and the luck factor. Keep in mind that these are just the opinions of the authors of this book. Enjoy!

Magic Arrows

Except for the Magic Arrow, each Spell appears exactly twice in the Spell Deck. After players prepare their starting M&M Decks, it is recommended to remove Magic Arrows from the Spell Deck until no more than two remain.

(Optional) Guaranteed Settlement

When distributing Far Tiles (II–III) between players, each player's pool of Map Tiles must include one Settlement.

(Optional) War Machines as Artifacts

Before the match, shuffle one Card of each War Machine into the Artifact Deck (or the Major Artifact Deck, if you split it as in Tournament Mode).

Round One Mulligan

At the start of your turn in the 1st Round, you may once reshuffle your hand back into your M&M Deck and draw a new starting hand.

Trading Post

Although rules as written state that you can remove only one Card from your hand while visiting a Trading Post, it is recommended to allow removing as many as you like.

Tier V–VII Combat on Hard+ Difficulty

Treat Level V–VII Combats as one difficulty step lower when playing on Hard or Impossible. For example, a Level VII Combat on Hard will be against 2 × ★ Neutral Units.

Victory Points

When playing with the optional Victory Points from the Tournament book, the following rules apply (unless overruled by the Scenario):

- Faction Towns grant 1 VP.
- Possessing the Grail at the end of the match grants 3 VPs. If the Grail was transported to that player's Faction Town, it grants 5 VPs instead.
- Capturing a Dragon Utopia grants 3 VPs.

Combat with Neutral Units

During Combat with Neutral Units in Clash Scenarios, if a player decides to deploy their Units only on one half (left or right) of the Combat Board, the player positioning the Neutral Units must do the same.

Placing Neutral Units far apart only makes the other player waste 🐎, which slows the game down. The exception to this rule is when there are three Neutral 🐂 or 🪽 Units to position, as all of them must go to the front line. See examples that follow.

Neutral Units are positioned correctly.

Not allowed: the Necropolis Units are on the left half, so the Peasants must start there too.

Exception: Three non-🏹 Units must be positioned on the front line.

The Boars must occupy one of the green Fields.
